

Cataracts vary in appearance. They are changes in the natural lens of the eye that cause light to be scattered or blocked. As you can see some are brown others white, others are spoke like, some a plaque. All can be removed with modern surgery in minutes and replaced with a clear new lens to restore vision to your best possible.

